

Reflection on IB Learner Profiles

I am doing a reflection on the IB Learner Profiles in my school. IB Learner Profiles are acts that you should use in your life all the time because they help you make your future the best it can be. In this reflection I hope to make people see how important these Learner Profiles really are and how they can change your life. In my reflection please take the time to use one of the IB Learner Profiles “reflective” to reflect about how you can use these IB Learner Profiles to help you in your life. Now I would like you to think about what you think the other Learner Profiles might be.

I used a lot of my IB Learner Profiles during the 2015 school year. One of them that all my classmates say I am is principled. I think I am principled because I follow the rules and try to do my best whenever I can. Another one I feel I am a lot is balanced. I am balanced because I do multiple things in school. I do student council, choir, and I do an extra literature class with my Headmistress. I also do multiple things outside of school. I do tennis class, gymnastics class, and I manage to go to dinner with friends in the middle of the week. The last IB Profile I have been a lot this year is reflective because I reflect about my work all the time and I also reflect about how I could be better at it. Please reflect right now how you could be principled, balanced, and reflective.

The IB Learner Profile I think I connect best with is inquirer. I think I connect with it best because I have natural curiosity; I love learning and I ask so many questions because I don't always understand everything. I have an example-when I was in numeracy class we were learning algebra and I completely didn't understand it because it was hard. I asked a lot of questions and I finally understood after I got the answers I needed. Even though I don't get told by a lot of people that I am an inquirer I feel strongly about me being an inquirer. I would like you to reflect right now about how you could encourage other people to be inquirers. All the IB Learner Profiles are open-minded, balanced, communicator, risk-taker, knowledgeable, reflective, principled, inquirer, caring, and thinker. Please encourage others to be all of these because you can change lives by only teaching people IB Learner Profiles because they help everyone.
